The previous 3 Mayoral elections have produced a 4% share of the vote, against a climate of toxicity surrounding austerity, the Brexit fiasco, the pandemic and the cost-of-living crisis. Trust in Politics is dwindling and voter apathy is rising.

We need to restore our winning mentality, back when the Liberal Democrats controlled councils' right across London, marching along Whitehall against the Iraq war. I recognise my offer, my background goes far beyond our core Party vote, reaching Londoners who represent all sections of this global city. London has always been my home and remains a great source of entertainment, a key resource for talent and employment, and a safe haven for an inclusive, multinational, multi-faith society. The Liberal Democrats will be the custodians for the politics of hope, fostering a culture of co-existence and consensus.

However, huge challenges still await Londoners, none no more so than Housing. As a council tenant, it is very unlikely now that I will ever own my own home. Moreover, I will defend our Party's position on reducing air pollution and putting forward our Party's principled stance on no net increase in airport runways. I will fight to restore our Assembly Member seats. I hope to build on our growing membership in London post - referendum by leading the effort in Inner London by working with local and borough parties to rebuild trust and confidence ahead of the most open election contest since the GLA first started back in 2000.
